

Juniors Open Year With 'Smooth Sailing' Theme

"Smooth Sailing" was the attractive theme used by the Junior Woman's Club at the opening meeting of the new season on Wednesday evening at the club house. Each table was decorated with a scene depicting forthcoming activities for the Junior club this year. Mrs. R. J. Setting served as decorations chairman, and was assisted by Mrs. Royal Penner, John Kemp, William Rogers and Kenneth Miller.

Mrs. Robert Mowry, president, conducted the meeting, which was opened with the invocation given by Mrs. R. R. Dexter, inspirational chairman.

Special guests introduced were Mrs. Ralph Schmidt, William Hall, Roland Petrat, Ed Osborne, Lynn Galsky, Lucille Ceder, Frank Williams and William Christian. Also present were Senior Women's club coordinators, Mrs. Grover C. Van Deventer, D. J. Thomsen and John Melville.

Mrs. John Kemp, program chairman, then presented Mrs. Dale Scott, of the Magic Mirror Beauty Salons, who gave a demonstration in hair styles. Mrs. Scott, noted beauty lecturer, consultant and hair stylist demonstrated her methods with club members acting as models. Mrs. Scott, wife of Dale Scott, president of the Magic Mirror Salons, is strenuously opposed to "cut and dried" methods of beauty care. She stresses a highly personalized approach to compliment the facial contours of each individual. Her methods, she says, dates back to the ancient Greek, whose primary rule was "Know Thyself."

Initiation ceremonies were held for Mrs. Charles Blahnik, Richard Brundin, Robert Foley, C. A. Fredrickson, Tom G. Halsey, Robert M. Hauck, John D. Heglun, Allen E. Hefferber, E.

What the newspaper means to THE SCHOOL by a Superintendent of Schools

"NEWSPAPERS and the free press are essential to the existence of the American public school. It is doubtful if the public schools could survive without their help. Such help has been greatly needed in the past and will continue to be needed in the future because schools are wholly dependent upon the people for support. Support comes when there is understanding and confidence.

There are many ways that schools have in building understanding and confidence. But one of the most effective is through the medium of communication—the newspaper, for example. Newspapers are well acquainted with the important part that the public schools have had in building effective citizens of good character in our democracy.

They have contributed outstandingly to the development of our American system of public schools during the last hundred years. They will continue to support public education. But education should be mindful that the support of a free press cannot be given; it must be earned.

Liberty of the press is one of our most cherished personal liberties. Each succeeding generation of youth must learn in our public schools about our precious heritage of freedoms. Through insight and understanding they must strengthen their determination to defend these freedoms in the American way against all enemies—foreign or domestic."
